THE South-Carolina Gazette.

From MONDAY July 1st, to MONDAY July 8th, 1751.

BOSTON, May 27.

WEDNESDAY last, in conſequence of an appointment from his honour the lieutenant governor and commander in chief, and the honourable his majeſty's council, public notice was taken of the death of his late royal highneſs FREDERICK prince of Wales. At nine of the clock in the morning, all the bells in town began to toll, and continued tolling till ten (the colours on board all the ſhips in the harbour being diſplayed) at which time the lieutenant-governor, with the members of his majeſty's council, the late ſpeaker of the houſe of repreſentatives, the officers civil and military, and a numerous train of other gentlemen, all in deep mourning, went in proceſſion from the council-chamber to the old ſouth meeting-houſe: They were preceded by the governor's company of cadets, under the command of Col. Pollard, in military mourning, and with arms reverſed, the drums, colours and officers ſtaves covered with black, at the company's expence. The march was ſolemn, and the ſtreets and windows of the houſes were throng'd with ſpectators, ſilent, and with ſorrow in their countenances. At the meeting-houſe there was a crowded aſſembly, the pulpit was hung in mourning, and a ſermon ſuitable to the occaſion preached by the Rev. Mr. Samuel Mather. At the ſame time, and upon the ſame occaſion, by a vote of the wardens and veſtry of the king's chapel, the pulpit there was hung in black, and a ſuitable ſermon preached by the Rev. Mr. Caner. After divine ſervice was ended, the proceſſion returned to the town houſe, in the ſame order they went from thence; and during their march, and a conſiderable time after, the guns from his majeſty's caſtle William, his majeſty's ſhip Succeſs, and the forts of Boſton and Charleſtown, were fired in a manner proper for funeral ſolemnities. The company of cadets then drew up in King-ſtreet, facing the council-chamber, and after three fires, were led off and diſmiſſed. —Nor was the mourning confined to an outward ſhew only, and the pomp of funeral ceremonies; but our grief was real, and our ſorrow ſincere, and unaffected. Loyalty to the beſt of kings, to whom we wiſh every bleſſing that can make a monarch great and happy, filled us with the deepeſt concern for the loſs which ſo nearly touched him. Our attachment to civil and religious liberty, of which we always regard the illuſtrious houſe of Hanover as the firmeſt bulwark, makes us eſteem a breach upon this, as a common loſs to be regretted by every proteſtant. As Engliſhmen, we mixed our tears with thoſe of the mourning nation, while the kind and generous ſentiments which the prince had expreſſed for New-England, called forth our warmeſt gratitude. His amiable, his endearing character for love to mankind, for conjugal affection, for a moſt tender parental care of his royal offspring, touched every ſoul that had any ſenſe of humanity. In a word, our grief was great and univerſal, from duty, gratitude and every vertuous tye, we reverenced the prince, and we loved the man.

Yeſterday morning, at five o'clock, an expreſs arriv'd at the ſecretary of ſtate's office, who brought an account of the death of the king of Sweden on the 25th of March, and that the prince ſucceſſor was proclaim'd the 30th, to the great joy of all ranks of people. His late Swediſh majeſty was born the 28th of April 1676.

Extract of a Letter from Barbados, Feb. 24.

Our commodore has been among all the neutral Iſlands, reading proclamations, &c. in order to make the French evacuate them; but they have fairly told him they ſhall not quit poſſeſſion. They are very numerous in thoſe Iſlands, and the Indians are firmly attached to them: So that it will be no eaſy taſk to drive them out, ſuppoſing our governors ſhould at laſt reſolve to employ force.

From the Utrecht Gazette.

London, April 9. N.S. The 6th inſtant a courier arriv'd from the Hague with important diſpatches concerning the affairs of the empire, and in particular, a declaration of the elector of Cologn, importing, 'that he renounces the ſubſidies which the maritime powers had engaged to pay him by the late treaty, looking on himſelf to be free from all engagements in this reſpect, in the ſame manner as if that treaty had never been made.' Yeſterday a council was held on this occaſion, the reſult of which, as we hear, was to make no farther inſtances to the elector of Cologn, ſeeing the formal declaration he had made, left no doubts concerning his preſent diſpoſition. Conferences have been very frequent theſe ſeveral days paſt between the two ſecretaries of ſtate and the Imperial, Ruſſian, French and Bavarian miniſters. The laſt diſpatches from Munich are as agreeable as can be wiſhed, in regard to the ſtability of the ſyſtem adopted by the elector of Bavaria. A courier is daily expected from Dreſden, and 'tis hoped he will bring deciſive diſpatches.'

We hear the right hon. the earl of Harcourt will be appointed treaſurer to his royal highneſs prince George.

The Boſton man of war, now fitting out in the river, is to be ſtationed at Nova-Scotia, where it will ſoon be followed by another, to relieve the ſhips now ſtationed there.

The laſt advices from Italy mention, that the republic of Venice have ordered a ſquadron of men of war to be fitted for the ſea, which are to be ſtationed at the Iſland of Corfou, in order to be ready in caſe of any emergency.

Letters from Berlin adviſe, that the troops are diſtributed in ſuch a manner in Sileſia and in Pruſſia, that at a week's warning two armies, of about 40,000 men each, may be aſſembled.

Thurſday the right hon. the earl of Orford waited on his majeſty at St. James's, and was moſt graciouſly received.

Coſby commander of the Santloe, of 20 guns; which men of war are to join commodore Edgecumbe's ſquadron, in order to ſail to the Mediterranean, and relieve commodore Kepple.

We hear that Capt. Murray, of the Trial, one of the Greenland ſhips in the ſervice of the Edinburgh company, who ſailed yeſterday, has carried with him a very curious machine for throwing harpoons, invented by Mr. Bond, a ſtudent of phyſick in this univerſity, to make the killing of whales more certain to the adventurers in that trade, and ſafer for the perſons employ'd in the fiſhery; which from a public ſpirit he has communicated.
